

EDITORIAL

Lo and behold, we have made it to our second issue of Emergent Australasian Philosophers.

We were again overwhelmed by the volume of submissions that arrived in reply to our calls for papers. Included in this issue is our first trans-Tasman article, together with a diverse offering of emergent philosophical work from the Australasian region. The overall quality of submissions is a credit to all those involved.

Once more we wish to express our deepest gratitude to our editorial team, who freely gave their time and energy in order to make this issue a reality. Special thanks are owed to Ben Hoban, David Allinson, and Keegan Eastcott-Layton. Furthermore, we would like to thank the Philosophy departments and individuals who continue to support us by encouraging students to contribute. Without this support, submissions, and the hard work by our editorial team, this issue would never make it to print.

In Memoriam: Scott Nicholas

This issue of Emergent Australasian Philosophers is dedicated to the memory of Scott Nicholas, who sadly passed away in June of this year. Scott was known to many members of the editorial team, and completed philosophy honours alongside Dean and myself at the University of Queensland in 2008.

He will be remembered as a kind, impartial and lively person possessed of a keen and often brilliant mind. He will be missed dearly.
