

EDITORIAL – ISSUE 3

The third issue of Emergent Australasian Philosophers represents another mile stone. For this particular issue we received more submissions than ever before, and from a wider array of universities. The number of submissions from issue to issue is only increasing, while keeping the same high standards.

Since the last issue, Emergent Australasian Philosophers acquired an ISSN (1837 – 5871). This is another indication of the progressive movement of EAP. Our goal is to provide a source of publication for those students who want to move into academic work, and the ISSN we acquired is a demonstration of our resolve to provide not only the best exposure, but a professional one too. The Australasian region may not rival other regions such as Europe or North America in terms of the amount of philosophy students, but we have plenty of talent to showcase nonetheless.

Congratulations to those who were successful, and good luck to those who intend to submit for Issue 4. As always, thanks again to the Editorial team for freely giving up their time to make this issue a reality.

Dean Goorden, Mathew Paul

Co-Editors-in-Chief